Obituary

Donna Kay Martin Sagebiel

Donna Kay Martin Sagebiel went to be with the Lord peacefully on Tuesday evening, Aug. 13, 2024.

Family and friends will gather from 5 to 7 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 23 in the Great Room at Harper & Lucas, formerly Robertson Mueller Harper, located at 1500 Eighth Ave, Fort Worth.

A Celebration of Her Life will be held at 10:30 am Saturday, Aug. 24 at Trinity Lutheran Church, 3621 Tulsa Way, with interment to follow at Greenwood Memorial Park.

Born in Fort Worth, Donna was the eldest daughter of Johnny Wayne and Eleanora Martin. She grew up in White Settlement and was baptized at St. John Lutheran Church in Detmold, Texas.

Donna graduated from Brewer High and was confirmed at Trinity Lutheran Church in Fort Worth where she married the love of her life, Gordon Frederick Sagebiel on April 8, 1967. They met at Tarleton State University where she studied nursing. They traveled to College Station where Gordon studied at Texas A&M University. Together, they had 4 children and 10 grandchildren.

Donna was known for her creative talents in decorating cakes and countless sewing projects. Donna enjoyed helping her children's pursuits in band, 4-H, FFA, and Camp Fire projects. She served her church leading Vacation Bible School, coordinating Mother Daughter Banquets, and more. Additionally, she often substitute-taught at Aledo High School. Closer to home, she encouraged her children and grandchildren to do well in school and study hard. Her favorite thing to do was spending time with family and creating her legacy of handmade gifts.

She was preceded in death by her parents and her husband of 55 years, Gordon Sagebiel.

Donna is survived by: her two sisters, Sharron and the late Bill Burt, and Bonnie and Jim Story; as well as her children, Richard and Nancy Sagebiel of Bastrop, Jason and Dr. Anna Sagebiel of Clive, IA, Rev. Jennifer and Chris Gold of Marion, and Dr. Kayla and Michael Sweet of Buda. Surviving grandchildren are: Daniel, Grace, Hannah, Rayann, Wyatt, Wayde, Zachary, Zane, Kyle and Matthew; along with numerous nieces, nephews and loving family members and friends.

Consideration of memorial contributions to Trinity Lutheran Church (Fort Worth), The American Diabetes Association or to a charity of choice is suggested.

Emergency App Offers Advice for a Variety of Situations

The American Red Cross Emergency App gives users instant access to safety and preparedness resources and alerts for 14 different types of emergencies in a free, easy to use mobile app.

The Red Cross app provides comprehensive information on what to do in case of hurricanes, earthquakes, floods, tornadoes, residential and forest fires among other emergencies. With the key word 'American Red Cross', users can download the emergency application for free at RedCross.org/Apps or in the Apple App Store and Google Play.

“This app gives families tips for being safe and connected in an emergency,” said Keith Rhodes, CEO, American Red Cross North Texas Region. “Because the app covers a variety of situations, the user will know what to do in the event of an emergency or disaster, regardless of where they are or type of emergency.”

The “We're Safe” or “Family Safe” feature allows the user to connect with their loved ones and instantly see if they're okay – even if that family member hasn't downloaded the emergency app on their device. If the family member or friend does not have the Red Cross emergency app, they will receive a text message asking if they are safe or not. The app also has a "I'm sure" button which allows the user to send a message to report that they are out of danger.

Here are some of the many features the app includes:

1. According to the user's preferences, the application offers more than 35 alerts based on geographic location (GPS) and pre-programmed locations – usually where family and friends live.
2. The user can activate or deactivate alerts according to their needs.
3. By means of a map, in the application, the user can locate Red Cross shelters and obtain weather reports specific to their area.
4. Users can easily change the preferences of the application and receive information in English or Spanish.
5. The Red Cross emergency app is also a source of information for incidents affecting large areas, such as landslides or snowstorms.
6. Its content puts the Red Cross expert guidance in your hands, anytime, anywhere – even without mobile connectivity.
7. The “Residential Fires” section offers tips on fire prevention, how to help protect yourself and your family in the event of an accident as such, the most common disaster risk in the United States.
8. With the touch of a button the user has access to the “make a plan” function, which allows him to elaborate, share and practice his disaster plan.

In addition to mobile phones and tablets, the “We're Safe” feature is also available on the Apple Watch.

Apps can help you prepare for disasters, it's important to remember that downloading our apps is not a substitute for training. For information on how to register and take a First Aid, CPR and AED class, visit RedCross.org and click “Take a Class”.

Student Athlete Spotlight: Western Hills Senior Abby Moilan

Abby Moilan had a phenomenal junior year of high school, both athletically and in academics.

The Western Hills powerlifter, volleyball player and shot-putter in track and field, competed at a high level in every sport, and football coach Blake Moilan, who is also Abby's father, said he was extremely impressed with his daughter's effort this past school year.

"Abby enjoys playing volleyball as her team sport and has played since she was little," Blake Moilan said. "She likes her coaches and teammates and finished as a second team all-district award winner. In powerlifting and track and field, your mindset has to change a bit because it is an individual sport. Its just you versus the competition. Abby made state in powerlifting and regionals in track and field. She did an awesome job of representing Western Hills, but has new goals for her senior year. She works out all summer with the football guys to try to reach those goals."

For Abby, 17, her feelings were somewhat mixed about last school year, but overall, said she was proud of what she was able to accomplish.

"I was very happy with how my volleyball season ended because I knew that my team and I worked as hard as we could," Abby said. "But I also believe that we could have made it farther into the playoffs. I was incredibly happy with my powerlifting season because I had made it to state, which was a huge accomplishment, and I plan to go again this year and get a medal. I was happy with my track and field season, as I got a PR and went to regionals in both Shot-Put and Discus. However, I know I could have made it farther had I been more consistent in my training. Overall, I believe the way my seasons unfolded was great, but I know I could have gone farther and been better in all of them."

A member of PAWS (Partnerships Across WHHS Students), the vice president of Key Club, and the treasurer of National Honors Society along with multiple college classes, Abby is also a part of a club track and field group called the bomb squad, which is a part of AP Ranch, and volunteers with multiple organizations.

For her senior year, Abby said she has a couple of goals.

"My objectives for volleyball are to make it to the playoffs and to place in the top 3," Abby said. "My objectives for powerlifting are to be in the top three at State and to enter the '1000 lb. Club'. My objectives for track and field are to make it to state and to throw 45 feet in shot-put and 120 feet in discus."

Powerlifting coach William Rock said his goals for her are pretty much the same, but not quite.

"I want to see Abby not just go to state and medal, but win state," Rock said. "She has the strength and ability to be the best in the state and leave her season year with an exclamation point."

Rock said during the off-season, Abby has been busy improving her overall strength.

"Abby's weight class was very close last year with first place and sixth place being within 30 pounds total of each other," Rock said. "Abby needs to work on consistent depth with her squat and I would love to see her opening squat be 400 pounds or more and then I want to see her make gains in her bench. Abby has worked hard this summer and has not missed a day in the weight room. She is stronger and only getting stronger as the season starts coming into focus. I am making sure this year we go to more competitive meets to really prepare her for the regional and state meet this year."

Besides being a talented athlete, Abby is also an excellent student, ranked in the top five of her graduating class.

But the Western Hills teen said it is not always easy to excel in both school and sports.

"My biggest challenge as an athlete has been balancing the stress between being a successful student and a multi-sport athlete," Abby said. "Having to balance missing school for sports and late-night practices with college level classes has been incredibly challenging but also rewarding."

Abby said her fondest memory from this season came during her trip to state for the sport of powerlifting.

"My whole family, including my aunt, uncle, and my mom's friend, came, which was nice and allowed me to enjoy my time between lifts," Abby said. "The very fact that I was able to go to a state powerlifting meet was honestly amazing. So, having my whole family there and celebrating with them was great."

American Billionaire Businessman, Herb Kelleher

Herb Kelleher became the face of one of Texas's most popular airlines by the 1980s. In an industry that appeared that struggled with many bankruptcies in that decade, he helped build Southwest Airlines into one of the most successful and profitable in the country.

He was born in Camden, New Jersey, in March 1931. After graduating high school in 1953, he went on to earn a bachelors degree at Wesleyan University in Connecticut.

While attending college, he happened to meet college student Joanne Negley, a San Antonio native. The two hit it off and were soon married in 1956, a marriage that produced four children. Kelleher earned a law degree at New York University. He returned to New Jersey and briefly served as a clerk to the New Jersey Supreme Court. Soon, his wife convinced him to move to Texas, a move Kelleher for years said was the smartest decision of his life.

Kelleher had settled into a life of a prosperous attorney by early 1967 when he met with one of his clients, Texas businessman Rollin King, and the two discussed the idea of a low-cost airline that would connect the three-largest cities in the state: Dallas, Houston, and San Antonio. By operating strictly within Texas, it would avoid many of the federal regulations on airline flights, routes, and pricing. In March, the two incorporated their venture as Air Southwest and went through the process of securing funding, planes, and licensing. Soon, three other airlines challenged the fledgling company in court, arguing that it upset the delicate balance among airlines created by federal regulations. One by one, the legal challenges fell, and the rechristened Southwest Airlines was ready to go.

After almost four years locked up in court, Kelleher managed to win approval for Southwest to begin flying in June 1971. He later said that when he saw the first Southwest jet, he ran up and kissed it. Southwest boasted $20 tickets (about $154 in modern dollars), which were almost half the cost of their competition. The airline used the Boeing 737 exclusively, helping save on maintenance costs.

By 1978, the airline was expanding rapidly and Kelleher rose temporarily to CEO of the corporation, a move that was made permanent by 1981. Kelleher's quirky humor and good business sense helped propel the airline to new heights. He promoted a light-hearted approach to the corporate environment that included eye-catching and humorous ads while emphasizing customer service. "You treat your people well, and they'll treat others well," he once said. "You have to treat your employees like customers." His gift for humorous promotion made him synonymous with the airline, and it became an attitude that filled the entire company.

Southwest prided itself on being a no-frills airline. Instead of assigned seats and different classes of seating, it was entirely economy class. The airline became famous for offering food no more extravagant than a bag of peanuts while the stewardesses would often play trivia games with the passengers mid-flight.

The airline continued to grow in profitability and popularity with the flying public. As a result, he was inducted into the Texas Business Hall of Fame in 1988.

In 1992, a trademark dispute threatened to erupt into a major legal headache for Southwest. The airline had taken to using the motto "Just Plane Smart" in its advertisements. However, Stevens Aviation, a South Carolina airplane maintenance firm, took exception because it was too close to its own trademarked motto "Plane Smart." The two agreed to settle the matter with a good-natured arm wrestling match between the two CEOs. While the date of the match approached, Kelleher jokingly posed at a gym prepping for the match by lifting two bottles of whiskey with a cigarette dangling out of his mouth. Stevens CEO Kurt Herwald beat Kelleher in the highly publicized match, which proved to be a public relations bonanza for both. Kelleher made a donation to charity, and Herwald decided he would share the trademark with Southwest.

Nearing 70 in March 2001, Kelleher stepped down as CEO of the company. He continued to serve as chairman of the board of directors until his retirement in 2008. The same year, he was inducted into the National Aviation Hall of Fame.

Kelleher died in January 2019 at age 87. Today, Southwest has more than 800 aircraft and employs more than 74,000 people, making it one of the largest airlines in the country. What started as a small statewide airline now has more than 100 destinations and earns more than $23 billion each year.

It features a silhouette of a soldier kneeling with a rifle against a yellow background with stars and a plane. The ad includes a QR code, a logo for the 988 Suicide & Crisis Lifeline, and a logo for the VFW (Veterans of Foreign Wars). The text at the bottom reads "IT TAKES ALL OF US TO PREVENT SUICIDE" and "Sunday Sept 15, 2024 8AM". Other logos at the bottom include One True and Run Time.
