The Benbrook City Council meeting was held on Nov. 20 as scheduled. Mayor Jason Ward called the meeting to order. An invocation was followed by the Pledge of Allegiance.

Time was then allowed for citizen comments on any agenda item.

Resident Jim Wilson approached the podium and thanked out-going council members Gary Addison and Dr. Larry Marshall for their service.

“Dr. Marshall, you are without a doubt the shining example of a public servant,” Wilson said. “I mean, three decades as a naval officer and doctor at that. Three more decades with a medical practice here in the region and three (continued on page 5)

Jacob Carpenter (state qualifier) will help elevate the team with them coming from football.”

The Benbrook boy's basketball team came up short against Life Waxahachie on Friday night, losing by a score of 75-43.

Coach Blake Mendez said it was a tough loss, but added that there were extenuating circumstances.

“We were extremely short handed against Life, but we had some young guys get some valuable minutes for us and they didn’t back down,” Mendez said. “Life plays fast and aggressive and they shot the ball extremely well. We held our own for three quarters but ultimately our short lineup and inexperience got the best of us.”

Mendez said he did have a standout performance in the game against Life Waxahachie.

“Brennan Barton played well in his first game back since football season ended,” Mendez said. “He’s always huge for us so it was nice to see him back on the hardwood. Once we get healthy, I think we’re going to surprise some people.”

Barton (below) also just wrapped up a record-setting football season, with more than 2,500 passing yards (2546) and 5,044 passing yard in his career, along with 20 touchdowns as the Bobcats quarterback.

Teammate Dorien Johnson (below) also had a great season on the gridiron, setting a record himself. Johnson finished with 1,015 receiving yards for the 2025 season (the most a receiver has ever had at Benbrook). He is a slot receiver and occasionally plays defensive back in football.

Back on the court, the Western Hills boys lost to the Young Men's Leadership Academy by a score of 55-41 on Friday.

Coach Justin Harrison could not be reached for comment.

On the girl's side, Benbrook came up short against Clarendon last Friday by a score of 66-23 in the Lady Lion Tournament in Ponder, and coach Leta Lofton said she knew her team would have it's hands full.

“The Clarendon game was a tough one, along with all the other teams in the tournament,” Lofton said. “We decided to join this tournament to get an early glimpse of our first-round opponents in the first round of playoffs. Clarendon has a well-rounded team that is very experienced . Most of their athletes are headed to play on the next level. They are well coached and very experienced. Our Lady Bobcats gave their best effort in scoring and competing against them. Competing against this caliber of talent will prepare us for district play.”

Lofton said Maddie Blocker had a great rebounding game against Clarendon, “bringing down multiple rebounds in this game.”

A History of White House Presidential Turkey Pardons

Beginning with George Washington, many presidents declared their own days of thanksgiving before Abraham Lincoln made it an official holiday in 1863 and Franklin D. Roosevelt signed legislation in 1941 designating the fourth Thursday in November as the federal Thanksgiving Day holiday.

Reports of turkeys as gifts to American presidents can be traced back to the 1870s.

Turkey presentations at the White House became national news in the 1920s with accounts of turkeys taking exciting cross-country trips to the White House and arriving dressed for the occasion in goggles and sweaters, inside their decorated coops.

John F. Kennedy was the first to unofficially pardon a turkey by telling attendees at the presentation, “Let’s keep him going.”

Patricia Nixon sent gifted turkeys to Oxon Hill Children’s Farm, while Rosalynn Carter sent some to a Evans Farm Inn to live in a miniature zoo.

In 1989, the formalities of pardoning a turkey became a White House Thanksgiving tradition when George H.W. Bush remarked, “Let me assure you, and this fine tom turkey, that he will not end up on anyone's dinner table, not this guy -- he's granted a Presidential pardon as of right now -- and allow him to live out his days on a children's farm not far from here.”

Since then, each year the president has pardoned a turkey or two in an official ceremony.

Small Business Saturday Highlights Local Spending Power Across the Country

Small Business Saturday, an annual shopping initiative held the day after Black Friday, continues to spotlight the outsized impact local spending has on communities across the United States.

Launched in 2010 by American Express and later recognized by the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA), the event encourages consumers to shift part of their holiday spending from national chains to independently owned shops, restaurants and service providers. For many small businesses, the Saturday after Thanksgiving is among the most important sales days of the year.

According to the SBA, money spent at locally owned businesses tends to recirculate within a community at a significantly higher rate than dollars spent at large retailers. Economists refer to this as the “local multiplier effect.” When customers buy from neighborhood shops, a portion of that revenue is more likely to support local jobs, fund public services through taxes, and generate demand for nearby suppliers and service providers.

Advocates say those reinvestments strengthen economic resilience, especially in towns and neighborhoods that rely on small storefronts for employment and community identity. While large chains offer convenience and bulk pricing, small businesses often provide personalized service, niche products, and community engagement that national retailers can’t replicate.

Artwork is titled: “The First Thanksgiving, 1621” by Jean Leon Gerome Ferris, created around 1912.

In recent years, shopping locally has also become an indicator of consumer values. Surveys conducted by business organizations show that many shoppers view their purchases as a form of civic support. Increased foot traffic on Small Business Saturday has helped some locally owned stores bridge slower sales seasons and maintain year-round operations.

Local chambers of commerce and municipal governments across the country frequently promote the day with expanded business hours and neighborhood events aimed at drawing shoppers to business districts. Some communities report that the visibility gained on Small Business Saturday can drive repeat customers long after the holiday rush ends.

While national chains remain a dominant force in American retail, supporters of Small Business Saturday say the movement illustrates that modest shifts in consumer behavior can deliver meaningful economic benefits. For many small business owners, even a small percentage of redirected holiday spending can influence hiring decisions, expansion plans and long-term stability.

As communities prepare for another holiday season, advocates continue to encourage residents to consider how their purchasing choices shape the local economy.

decades of serving this city specifically...I think I speak for many of us here when I say that I'm just proud to know you.”

Marshall received an ovation from everyone present.

Wilson then thanked both members' wives who were in attendances and wished them “many uninterrupted Thursday night dinners,” for years to come.

More residents followed, all thanking both members for their service.

The minutes from the previous meeting held on Nov. 6 were then approved unanimously. The minutes from the special meeting held on Nov. 17 were than approved unanimously.

Marshall then said a few words, thanking the residents present.

“It's been an honor to be representative of Benbrook,” Marshall said. “I don't know how to tell anybody here how proud you can be when... people know you're from Benbrook. People will ask you, 'How come your city doesn't have this problem?' or ‘How come your city doesn't have that problem?’ I know from my many years on planning and zoning, we took care of it.”

Marshall then praised the city workers for their efforts to ensure the continued stewardship for the city of Benbrook. He also thanked his wife Joanne for her supportive over the years.

Ward then read the proclamation for Gary Addison. Addison was first elected in 2021 and was re-elected once.

“It's been a real honor and a real privilege to work with this city and serve this city over the course of the last four years,” Addison said. “We have a great admin, we have a great response team, a great fire department and police department...and our city council, it goes without saying, is state-of-the-art... they're top notch.”

Ward was then sworn in following his re-elect to Mayor.

The Oath of Office was then administered to newly elected council members Ryan Reagan to place 3 and Sean Moore to place 5.

Thanksgiving Proclamation

New York, 3 October 1789

By the President of the United States of America, a Proclamation.

Whereas it is the duty of all Nations to acknowledge the providence of Almighty God, to obey his will, to be grateful for his benefits, and humbly to implore his protection and favor - and whereas both Houses of Congress have by their joint Committee requested me "to recommend to the People of the United States a day of public thanksgiving and prayer to be observed by acknowledging with grateful hearts the many signal favors of Almighty God especially by affording them an opportunity peaceably to establish a form of government for their safety and happiness."

Now therefore I do recommend and assign Thursday the 26th day of November next to be devoted by the People of these States to the service of that great and glorious Being, who is the beneficent Author of all the good that was, that is, or that will be - That we may then all unite in rendering unto him our sincere and humble thanks - for his kind care and protection of the People of this Country previous to their becoming a Nation - for the signal and manifold mercies, and the favorable interpositions of his Providence which we experienced in the course and conclusion of the late war - for the great degree of tranquility, union, and plenty, which we have since enjoyed - for the peaceable and rational manner, in which we have been enabled to establish constitutions of government for our safety and happiness, and particularly the national One now lately instituted - for the civil and religious liberty with which we are blessed; and the means we have of acquiring and diffusing useful knowledge; and in general for all the great and various favors which he hath been pleased to confer upon us.

And also that we may then unite in most humbly offering our prayers and supplications to the great Lord and Ruler of Nations and beseech him to pardon our national and other transgressions - to enable us all, whether in public or private stations, to perform our several and relative duties properly and punctually - to render our national government a blessing to all the people, by constantly being a Government of wise, just, and constitutional laws, discreetly and faithfully executed and obeyed - to protect and guide all Sovereigns and Nations (especially such as have shewn kindness unto us) and to bless them with good government, peace, and concord - To promote the knowledge and practice of true religion and virtue, and the encrease of science among them and us - and generally to grant unto all Mankind such a degree of temporal prosperity as he alone knows to be best.

Given under my hand at the City of New York the third day of October in the year of our Lord 1789.

Texas History Minute by Dr. Ken Bridges

From Plymouth to Today: How Thanksgiving Became a National Celebration

Thanksgiving is approaching once more as the nation pauses to gather with family and give thanks. The nation will mark Thanksgiving once again on this Fourth Thursday in November. It is part of a long tradition that has spanned many generations.

One of the most well-known and one of the earliest Thanksgiving feasts was that of the Pilgrims at the Plymouth Colony on Nov. 22, 1621. It had been a difficult year for the English settlers who had arrived in Massachusetts the previous November. The Wampanoag tribe, which controlled most of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, made offers of friendship to the Pilgrims, sharing their food as the colonists struggled through the winter and then taught them about farming in the completely new environment.

After a bountiful harvest that fall, the Pilgrims decided to organize a feast to give thanks to God for their good fortune. In the spirit of gratitude, the Wampanoags were invited to join them in what became a three-day feast. The meal was quite different than the usual fare seen on American tables today. Using what was available locally, they ate swans, seals, deer, fish, and lobsters.

Such celebrations to give thanks to God were not unusual among Europeans in general during that time period. By the time of the famous 1621 Thanksgiving at the Plymouth Colony, other feasts to give thanks had occurred already in other parts of the nation. In 1565, Spanish conquistadores led by Pedro Menendez de Avile at the settlement of St. Augustine, Florida, held a special Roman Catholic mass and later a feast to give thanks to God for their safe arrival. They invited members of the local Timucua tribe to join them.

In 1598, more than 500 Spanish colonists led by Don Juan de Onate arrived at San Elizario, near modern-day El Paso, and had a special day to give thanks for their own good fortune. On Dec. 4, 1619, English settlers arriving in eastern Virginia at Berkeley Hundred had a feast to give thanks to God for their safe passage. However, regular Thanksgiving observances did not continue in these areas. Though each community claims to be the site of the first Thanksgiving, the modern holiday stems from the tradition that began at Plymouth.

The Plymouth colonists and the tribes did not repeat the occasion in 1622. In 1623, after a difficult year of droughts that threatened the crops, late rains rescued the harvest. As it proved to be much more bountiful than expected, the colonists again had a celebration to give thanks that November. Tragically, relations with the Wampanoag tribe deteriorated in the ensuing decades with the initial gestures of friendship forgotten and the tribe shattered by war. Nevertheless, New England residents would continue to have periodic Thanksgiving observances in the years afterward, often organized by the local churches.

In spite of a few instances of Thanksgiving observances in the South, it did not catch on as an annual observance as it did in New England. The tradition, however, spread northward into the British colonies in Canada, where observances remained mostly local until the late 1800s. It was established as an official national holiday in Canada in 1957, and because of Canada's shorter growing season, on the second Monday in October.

New York became the first state to declare Thanksgiving a holiday, starting in 1817. Efforts were made to make it a national holiday in the 1820s, led by noted writer and educator Sarah Josepha Hale of New Hampshire. Up until the Civil War, the date of Thanksgiving was left to the states and made more of a local observance. Dates for Thanksgiving ranged from early October through the end of December.

In 1863, Secretary of State William H. Seward convinced President Abraham Lincoln to make it a national holiday on the last Thursday in November. Lincoln announced the holiday as a day to give thanks to God for the blessings the nation had and added that all Americans should remember the widows and orphans the war created.

In 1941, the holiday officially became the fourth Thursday in November from that point onward.

President Harry Truman started the tradition of pardoning one turkey for Thanksgiving in 1947.

Other nations have also adopted Thanksgiving, inspired by the American example. Liberia, which was founded by former American slaves, marks Thanksgiving as the first Thursday in November, dating back to 1821. Brazil made the fourth Thursday in November its Thanksgiving holiday in 1966 after their ambassador to the United States saw the American holiday firsthand. In honor of the Pilgrims, who had come to The Netherlands before embarking on their voyage to Plymouth, many churches have Thanksgiving celebrations in that same spirit of thanks.

Turkey sales have topped $1 billion annually in the past few years with tens of millions traveling to meet friends and loved ones. The average cost of a meal was $58.08 in 2024, according to analysts. As the Thanksgiving weekend marks the traditional beginning of the Christmas shopping season, more than $127 billion was spent at stores that weekend in 2024, an average of more than $500 per person. Nevertheless, many churches and communities still continue with the initial spirit of Thanksgiving by reaching out to the poor and homeless with food drives and community Thanksgiving meals prepared and served by volunteers.

Though illness concerns may dampen many travel plans and gatherings out of precautions for public health, millions of Americans, wherever they are, will still pause to consider what they are thankful for.
