Brewer Bears to Take On Granbury Pirates Tomorrow

The Brewer football team came up a little short on Friday night, losing to Denton Ryan by a score of 31-7 and moving to 3-4 in district competition.

Coach Jason Wheeler said despite the loss he was proud of the way that his team competed throughout the duration of the contest.

“The kids came out to play,” Wheeler said. “They had about an eight-minute span in the third quarter where they were able to put 21 points (continued on page 2) on the board. We knew they were explosive, but the kids prior to that played really hard. And even after, they never quit. They continued to compete and tried to put themselves into a position to win the game.”

Wheeler said he also had a couple of standout performances in the game for the Bears.

“Lucas Davis and Elijah Mande both played a heck of a game, and both are seniors,” Wheeler said. “And then Kameron Coleman continued to run the ball well.”

Coleman ran for 178 yards and a touchdown in the game for Brewer.

Reflecting on the improvement he has seen from his team so far this season, Wheeler said he is pleased with how far they have come.

“We played 11 sophomores that played a lot,” Wheeler said. “To see them grow from game one to game nine, it was pretty significant. Just from a maturity stand point, understanding the game and how to win or at least give yourself a chance to win, they have really come a long way.”

Brewer will wrap up the season at 7 p.m. tomorrow evening at Granbury, and Wheeler said he expects a good game from the Pirates.

“I know they are going to be well-coached,” Wheeler said. “Coach (Bobby) Allison was at Northwest as a defensive coordinator, and he did some really good things there. So they're going to be well-coached and they are going to play hard. Granbury always plays hard.”

lished in North Central Texas. On Nov. 14, 1849, the U.S. War Dept. officially granted the name “Fort Worth” to the post near the confluence of the Clear and West forks of the Trinity.

Parade participants will form up in the Fort Worth Panther Island Pavilion parking lot. They will march south on Forest Park Blvd. from Percy Street to the end of the center grass median and back.

Parking in the Pavilion parking lot for vehicles not in the parade is extremely limited. Spectators can park off the pavement in Forrest Park, but must get there before 10 a.m. when the street closes.

There’s ample parking in Trinity Park on the Northwest side of the river near the Phyllis Tilley Memorial Bridge (pedestrian bridge). Cross over to Rotary Plaza on North Forest Park Blvd. The Plaza is on Trinity Trail along the river, a great viewing location for the entire parade.

Limited parking is also available on 11th Ave., a block east of the parade route.

The parade website contains extensive information about the celebration, as well as route maps and events schedule.

Residential Meter Replacement Program

The Residential Meter Replacement Program will get underway on Tuesday, Nov. 12. As part of this program, all residents that haven't already received a new meter will have one installed.

Many of the water meters in the City are over 40 years old and are in need of replacement.

If you check the attached map, note that zones 2 and 10 will be the first to receive new meters.

Zone 2 includes all dark blue areas including those along Pemberton and Mirike.

To see a more detailed interactive map, click here.

Residents in these zones will receive a letter at their home from the City detailing the meter replacement process.

Vanguard Utility Services, a contractor working on behalf of the City, will be completing this work.

Note, there will be a temporary service interruption when your water meter is replaced, but these will typically last less than one hour. Vanguard will do all of the work outside at your meter box and will not need to go inside your house.

You do not need to be present at the home for the meter replacement work to be done.

Be on the lookout for more information as replacement work shifts to new zones in the coming weeks and months.

To learn more about the Meter Replacement Program including a full map of the meter replacement zones, the benefits of the new meters, and to read Frequently Asked Questions about this process, visit www.wstx.us/meters.

If you have further questions or concerns, contact Public Works Director Larry Hoover by calling 817-246-4971, ext 265.

Waterfowl Hunters Play a Critical Role in Preventing the Spread of Invasive Species

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TPWD) encourages hunters to take responsible action in their role in protecting waterfowl habitats and the lakes we love from the spread of aquatic invasive species like giant salvinia and zebra mussels. Hunters can make a difference by simply taking a few minutes to clean, drain and dry their boats and equipment, including decoys and other hunting gear, before traveling from lake to lake. These simple steps help keep these species from establishing new homes.

Aquatic invasive plants can easily become entangled or trapped on boats and boat trailers and moved to other lakes. Hunters should also make sure they aren't inadvertently carrying invasive species on other equipment like waders, decoys, decoy bags and marsh sleds by cleaning, draining and drying this equipment as well.

Giant salvinia, one of the most problematic aquatic invasive plants in Texas, can double in size and acreage in less than a week, quickly becoming a problem. Just a small fragment of giant salvinia or other aquatic invasive plants can cause an infestation in a new lake, making it imperative for all boaters to clean, drain and dry their boats and gear.

"Giant salvinia can also outgrow and replace the native plants that waterfowl rely on for food and habitat," said John Findeisen, TPWD Aquatic Habitat Enhancement Team Lead.

Giant salvinia is currently present on 25 East Texas lakes and numerous rivers, creeks and marshes between Houston and Beaumont.

Other major invasive species threats in Texas include zebra and quagga mussels. Currently, zebra mussels are found in 37 Texas lakes across seven river basins as well as in river reaches downstream of infested lakes.

These invaders can harm aquatic life, litter shorelines with sharp shells, damage boats, clog water intakes and cause costly damage to water supply and control infrastructure.

"Waterfowl hunters can help keep invasive mussels and aquatic plants from being moved and harming more lakes by taking a few minutes to remove plants and debris from boats, along with draining water before leaving the lake and allowing everything to dry completely afterward before traveling to a new location," said Monica McGarrity, TPWD Senior Scientist for Aquatic Invasive Species. "Taking just a few minutes for these simple steps can help prevent impacts on ecosystems, infrastructure and recreation, and make a huge difference in our efforts to protect and preserve Texas lakes for current and future generations."

On top of the harm invasive species cause aquatic ecosystems, water infrastructure and the recreational experience at lakes, the transport of these organisms can result in legal trouble for boaters. Transporting prohibited aquatic invasive species in Texas is illegal and punishable with a fine of up to $500 per violation. It's also the law that boaters must drain all water from their boat and onboard receptacles, including bait buckets, before leaving or approaching a body of fresh water. They must also remove all invasive plants from the boat, trailer and tow vehicle before leaving a lake.

TPWD and partners monitor for invasive species in Texas lakes, but anyone who finds them in lakes can help identify and prevent new introductions by reporting the sighting to TPWD immediately at 512-389-4848 or by emailing photos and location information for new invasions to aquaticinvasives@tpwd.texas.gov. To learn more, visit tpwd.texas.gov/StopInvasives.

Event Program

- Welcome and Recognition of Distinguished Guests - Amy Arnold, President of the White Settlement Historical Society and White Settlement Museum Board Member
- History of the 1864 WT Allen Log Cabin and Recent Renovation Activity - Tracy Houpt, First Vice President & Historian of the White Settlement Historical Society and White Settlement Museum Board Member
- City of White Settlement Address - Mayor Faron Young, City of White Settlement
- Direct Descendant Address - Sherry Feltner, 3rd Generation Descendant of WT Allen
- Closing Remarks - Tracy Houpt

The WT Allen Log Cabin, a significant piece of White Settlement's history, was originally built in 1864 by William T. Allen (1842-1893) after he returned from service in the Confederate Army. This modest 13'x18' cabin was located on 160 acres six miles west of the Tarrant County Courthouse served as the home of the Allen family until 1908. Throughout the years, the cabin has been moved, restored, and preserved to maintain its historical integrity.

For the past two years, dedicated volunteers, including local students, worked to restore the cabin by replacing the traditional "chinking" between the logs—a process that mirrors the original construction methods using clay, sand, straw, water, and fieldstones from Farmers Branch Creek. These efforts have ensured the preservation of the cabin for future generations, keeping alive the legacy of the Allen family and the early settlers of the region.

This event offers a unique opportunity for the public to engage with local history, meet direct descendants of WT Allen, and learn about the ongoing preservation efforts that keep White Settlement's heritage alive.

The White Settlement Historical Society encourages residents, history enthusiasts, and media representatives to attend this historic celebration.

For more information, please contact the White Settlement Historical Society/Museum at 817-246-9719 or email wshm@sbcglobal.net.

Texas History Minute, by Dr. Ken Bridges

American Old West Outlaw - Johnny Ringo

Johnny Ringo led a life filled with violence. Though he was famous for his last months in Arizona, fate also brought him to Texas for a time. What turned him to a life of crime remains uncertain; but in his short, blood-soaked life, he left a deep impact on the history of the West.

John Peters Ringo was born into a farming family in Grand Forks, Indiana, in 1850. Moving great distances was common in those days, and the family packed up and moved to Missouri in 1858. His father, however, contracted tuberculosis. During the Civil War, the family moved further west in hopes of recovering his health. They crossed the Great Plains in 1864 as part of a wagon train. As they entered Wyoming, his father apparently fell off a wagon, and the shotgun in his hands went off in his face, killing him instantly. The devastated family continued on to California, staying with Ringo's uncle near San Jose for the next few years.

In 1869, the 19-year-old Ringo left California and made his way to Texas. But bloodshed was not far behind. Not long after his arrival, he was arrested and fined $75 for firing a gun across the town square in Burnet. He soon became involved in the notorious Mason County War of 1875-77. The Central Texas county was in chaos with different factions accusing each other of cattle rustling. After one accused thief was killed along with the sheriff bringing him to jail, a series of gunfights and assassinations erupted and tore the county apart.

Johnny Ringo soon was in the middle of the terror. In 1875, he and another man were arrested for the murder of Jim Cheyney, whom Ringo had accused of murdering a friend. Over the next several months, he remained in jail while Texas newspapers ran stories calling Ringo the head of one of the factions. A mob of his supporters broke him out of jail at one point, but he was soon recaptured.

The Mason County Courthouse burned to the ground in January 1877, effectively marking the end of the fighting. More than a dozen people were dead. Most of the accused were released as the evidence had all been lost in the fire. Ringo was acquitted in 1878. His popularity still ran high, and he was elected constable for his Mason County precinct that year. Law enforcement did not sit well with him, and for unknown reasons, he soon left for the Arizona Territory. Within weeks of his arrival, he got into a gunfight in a local saloon, seriously injuring a man. Ringo, however, was not tried over the incident.

By 1881, he found himself in the mining boomtown of Tombstone. Tombstone itself was already in the midst of increasing violence over cattle rustling and competing mine claims, and Ringo, already with a bloody reputation, fell in with the Cochise County Cowboys, a gang of thieves and murderers. He soon encountered Doc Holliday, the Georgia dentist turned gambler and gunfighter. The two clashed repeatedly, often challenging each other to gunfights as their friends tried to restrain them.

He took no part in the 1881 gunfight at the OK Corral, but he swore revenge against the four men who had won the fight against the Cowboys: Holliday and Wyatt, Morgan, and Virgil Earp.

Wyatt Earp suspected Ringo of being involved with the crippling of his brother Virgil later in December 1881 and the revenge murder of his other brother Morgan in March 1882.

In January 1882, Ringo challenged Holliday to a fight; and the two were briefly arrested on weapons charges as the two prepared to draw their guns on each other. A month later, Ringo was arrested again on an outstanding charge of robbery but soon released. By the spring, Ringo led a posse against Wyatt Earp and Doc Holliday as they sought revenge against the Cowboy faction. Earp killed Curly Brocius, one of Ringo's associates. Within weeks, Earp and Holliday had left Arizona, but deaths connected with the Cowboys continued for some time.

By summer 1882, Ringo sank into a drinking binge. He was last seen on a ranch not far from Tombstone in July. Ringo died under mysterious circumstances, a final victim of the violent life he had created for himself.

How he died is still a matter of speculation. The official coroner's report released that summer said the death was a suicide by gunshot, but the report also noted a knife cut at the base of his scalp. Wyatt Earp denied involvement with Ringo's death to authorities, but he allegedly told different stories to acquaintances over the years. Doc Holliday, who was wanted for murder in the Arizona Territory, was reportedly in either Colorado answering a new string of charges against him or in California, but his location could not be pinpointed.

It was a life soaked in blood, and few mourned his passing. As so many details of his life remained unanswered, more of his life began to be the subject of tall tales that grew into legend.
