Community Members Attend White Cane Walk & Fall Kid Fish

A White Cane Walk was held on Saturday, Oct. 12 as an opportunity to learn more about community resources available to people with vision loss and celebrate their achievements.

Also known as White Cane Safety Day, the annual observance highlights the white cane as a valuable tool used by individuals who are visually impaired. The white cane is a symbol of how people with blindness or vision loss can (continued on page 4) competition on Oct. 4, and coach Marcelo Hernandez said the result was not unexpected. (continued on page 2)

The Brewer cross country team competed in their district meet this past week and one of its distance runners is headed to the regional competition next week.

Freshman Madison Carroll qualified for the regional meet with a time of 20:30.41 in the 5,000 meter event at the District 5-5A

“Madison Carroll has been outstanding all year long,” Hernandez said. “She finished the regular season with a solid PR run finishing in eighth place and the top freshman in the district. With that, she is the Newcomer of the Year, and she will be the only qualifier for regionals.”

Hernandez said he does have a couple of objectives for his freshman runner at the regional meet.

“We will run regionals concentrating to running with the pack and using her strength in the middle part of the race,” Hernandez said. “Here’s hoping for another solid effort for her.”

Brewer finished fourth as a team on the girl's side and seventh on the boy's side, and Hernandez said he knew there would be some tough sledding this year.

“With only one returning letterman from last year’s team on the girls side, I knew it would be a tough meet,” Hernandez said. “Same with the boys. Even though it was a young team, our girls team did well led by a freshman and another underclassmen in Olivia Farris. Although we came up a bit short, we’ve got a good core group to build from for next year.”

On the gridiron, the Brewer football team was in their bye week on Oct. 11.

The Bears will play Birdville tomorrow night, and coach Jason Wheeler said last week that the Hawks are a similar program to his own.

“Birdville is a lot like us and a lot like Azle,” Wheeler said. “You take a couple of plays out of the Azle game and it's a different game, so I think that us and them and Azle are all very similar when it comes to talent and the types of things we do, so it is going to be interesting. We've got to take advantage of opportunities and not give them opportunities.”

On the court, the Brewer volleyball team lost to Chisholm Trail by a score of 3-0 on Friday.

Brewer will host Saginaw at 6 p.m. tomorrow evening.

City Council Candidates Respond to Candidate Questionnaire

Election Day is Tuesday, Nov. 5 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. with early voting taking place Oct. 21 through Nov. 1.

The November election will include Place 4 and Place 5 on the White Settlement City Council. Candidates on the ballot are:

- Place 4: William Wright (incumbent), Michael Evans and Michael Harris

- Place 5: Gregg Geesa (incumbent) and Kandace Espinosa

We asked each candidate a series of questions to aid readers in making their choices. Their responses are below.

Michael Evans and Michael Harris had not responded as of press time.

1. What is your educational background?

Espinosa: I have my High School Diploma, but further education wasn't needed for my life calling. The real world and life balancing surviving in this economy is my experience that I feel I am equipped for this position.

Geesa: Texas Wesleyan Certified Small Business Administration, Philips School of Sales and Marketing

Wright: Some college

2. How long have you lived in the city?

Espinosa: Almost 5 years and plan to remain a resident for decades to come.

Geesa: I was born in White Settlement in 1953. I have moved to wherever my employer sent me over the years, but I have always returned home. Currently, I have lived here for three years and have no plans to move again.

Wright: 6 years this time. 15 years total. Graduated BHS in 1993

3. How have you been involved in the community?

Espinosa: You may have seen me around the city helping with food distributions, lending a hand to a neighbor and answering social media pleas for networking to help meet needs. I have attended community gatherings, and insightful programs put together by city officials such as "Citizens Police Academy". I am actively joining programs, meetings and organizations that I may help volunteer with throughout the city.

Geesa: I have served on the Board of Directors for the Community Garden, the Economic Development Corporation, the Civil Service Commission, and I am currently serving as the Place 5 City Councilman.

Wright: 6 years. Started with going to meetings, then serving on the Parks and Rec board, then for the last 2.5ish years as Councilman Place 4.

4. What motivated you to run for City Council?

Espinosa: I am a mother, wife, homeowner and active member in my community. I am ready to put back the focus of what's in the best interest of our citizens first and to be a solid representative who listens and works with citizens input.

Geesa: Quite frankly, I wanted to understand and be involved in the process of bringing White Settlement out of what I as a citizen saw as a downward spiral and back to the vibrant town it is capable of being.

Wright: Had several people tell me that my ideas would be good for the city. I just want to help the city become the place I know it can be.

5. What do you hope to accomplish during your term?

Espinosa: To responsibly represent and adopt policies and projects that will benefit the city but will also not be a burden on citizens livelihood.

Geesa: I know this easier said than done, but I would like to accomplish a new measure of growth and prosperity, security, and a sense of pride in where we call home.

Wright: Continue with the accomplishments from my first term. Bring a food truck park to the city. Continue with the major road repairs, continue bringing businesses to the city and work to increase revenue for the city outside of property taxes.

6. What is the biggest project you envision for the city?

Espinosa: Bringing business to flourish and community events. I will be for the road and beautification work to be done so that we are attracting businesses and families to join our wonderful city.

Geesa: There are so many projects that need to be done that it is difficult to decide where to start. Infrastructure as in Water, Sewer, and Road repair, are key; Security as in Police, Fire, and Code Enforcement are just as important; Transparency and Accountability in our City Government and its employees is a must. These are the things that must be in place in order to succeed at our largest project which is White Settlement's Growth.

Wright: A new fire station for the fire department and a food truck park. As well as revitalizing the skate park.

7. What issues do you believe are most important to residents and how to you intend to address them?

Espinosa: Representation. Keeping communication open and accessible for everyone, even if they may speak a different language. I do not want there to be any barriers to prevent a citizen from reaching out to their representatives. I will go above and beyond to meet and communicate with members of the community of any concerns and/or suggestions they may have, ensuring they will be heard.

Geesa: The big three are obviously Water, Sewer, and Roads. With the exception of the last three or four years, our city government did not address these issues for probably 20 years. The lack of planning for maintenance of our water system, sewer lines, street design and repairs, has landed us in a precarious position; that of needing these services without the funds to pay for them. Possibly our past city government did not have access to a budget to pay for these issues. Residential property values can only account for a limited amount of tax revenue to be used to fund the city. When that money is spent, nothing can move forward. When our infrastructure is not working properly, no one wants to build new homes or open new businesses that provide more tax revenue to maintain our shared services. Our city and its services wither away, neighborhoods become run down, crime moves in, and we lose civic pride. In the past, White Settlement had the reputation of being unfriendly to businesses. The city was too demanding, permits were hard to get. Business owners felt as though they were not welcome within our city limits. In the last couple of years that has begun to change. New homes are being built and most importantly new businesses are popping up, bringing new life and revenue to the city! With the availability of these new funds, I intend to push forward with the infrastructure repairs and maintenance needed to attract even more homes and businesses that can serve the needs of our citizens.

Wright: Crime is a very important issue. I plan to continue giving the WSPD what they need to effectively fight crime. Road repairs. I plan to keep pushing for major street repairs and resurfacing. Look at ways to have a crew that focuses on pothole repairs. Restaurants and stores. The citizens want more places to shop and eat. I plan to continue to talk to potential business owners and work to get them to come to the city.

Mary Isham Keith Chapter, NSDAR, Celebrates the 125th Anniversary of the DAR Hospital Corps

Mary Isham Keith Chapter, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, recently enjoyed a fun and informative October chapter meeting. Chapter members dressed in pink in support of Breast Cancer Awareness Month. As part of the flat George Washington Tour of Commemorative Events, Regent Charlsey Holler welcomed Colonel Karen Nauschuetz (Army Ret.), guest speaker, as well as members and prospective members to the celebration of the 125th Anniversary of the DAR Hospital Corps. Colonel Nauschuetz's presentation about Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee, Founder of the DAR Hospital Corps, was the highlight of the gathering. As part of her program, Mary Isham Keith Chapter nurses were honored with pins and certificates.

The DAR Hospital Corps was founded in April 1898 during the Spanish American War to provide nurses for the war effort. At the onset of the Spanish-American War, the Surgeon General requested and promptly received congressional authority to appoint women nurses under contract.

Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee was placed in charge of selecting graduate nurses for the Army and suggested that the DAR act as an application review board for military nursing services. Thus, the DAR Hospital Corps was founded, with Dr. McGee as its director. The DAR Hospital Corps certified 1,081 nurses for service during the Spanish-American War. The DAR later funded private pensions for many of the nurses who did not qualify for government pensions. Dr. McGee wrote the section of the Army Reorganization Act legislation pertaining to nursing and is now known as the founder of the Army Nurse Corps. (source: NSDAR National Website)

The NSDAR is a non-profit, non-political volunteer service organization and lineage society. More than one million women have found purpose and passion in DAR membership.

Texans can Spring Into Action by Planting Native Wildflower Seeds in the Fall

One of the many things Texas is known for is the abundance of beautiful wildflowers that line hills and highways every spring. What many wildflower admirers may not know is that fall is the ideal time to plant wildflower seeds in preparation for those spring blooms.

Many native wildflowers, including the famed bluebonnets and Indian paintbrushes, require colder soil temperatures combined with appropriate watering or rainfall for seeds to germinate in the fall and be ready to bloom in the spring. Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TPWD) biologists encourage people to do their research before buying commercially available native seeds packets and be selective to not introduce non-native plants to their property.

Native wildflowers provide critical habitat for pollinators, many of which have seen declines in their population. These important insects, birds and mammals are key to sustaining native plant species, human food crops and even crops for livestock.

“Native plants are adapted to our soils and growing conditions just as our native pollinators are adapted to those same plants,” said Craig Hensley, Texas nature tracker biologist. “Native plants form the foundation of healthy food webs and sustain pollinators who in turn provide food for other wildlife from birds to amphibians, reptiles and mammals.”

As more than 94 percent of Texas lands are privately owned, effective native pollinator conservation requires landowner engagement and involvement. Texans can play a significant role in conserving and maintaining populations of native pollinators by applying management practices that benefit these species.

Planting your own backyard wildflower pollinator garden:

- Pick a spot in the yard or garden that doesn't have preexisting turf (St. Augustine and Bermuda) or remove turf if needed.
- Scatter seed by hand. Smaller seeds are easier to handle if mixed with sand. One part seed to four parts sand.
- Rake or tamp in seeds, but make sure they are only about 1/8 inch deep; seeds need will need the sun to germinate.
- Keep moist for several days unless rainfall is expected. Water every 2-3 weeks during prolonged periods of no rain during the winter.

For landowners with larger tracts of land who are interested in native pollinator conservation, the TPWD private lands program and local biologists can offer management recommendations.

Once flowers bloom in the spring, enjoy their beauty until all have bloomed, withered, dried and had an opportunity to drop their seeds before mowing fields or trimming plants back. You might also consider leaving the dead stems, as they provide nesting homes for many of our solitary bee pollinators. Typically, this occurs in late June and early July. Allowing the plants to drop their seeds creates a seed bank that will provide more plants for years.

For additional native wildflower resources, go to the Lady Bird Johnson Wildflower Center or Native Plant Society of Texas pages. To learn more about insect pollinators, go to the TPWD Monarch Butterfly and Other Insect Pollinators page.

Texas History Minute, by Dr. Ken Bridges

A History of Halloween

Halloween is a day filled with excitement, charged with the imagination and the spirit of adventure that makes childhood such a memorable time. Many children never outgrow their love for the day and pass on the joy of trick-or-treating to their children and grandchildren or enjoy Halloween parties as adults. Halloween has a history dating back centuries.

The roots of Halloween lay deep in old Christian traditions. Halloween is separate from the old harvest festivals common in Europe before the arrival of Christianity, but elements of these traditions would continue in celebrations in the British Isles.

Pope Gregory III established All Saints' Day on Nov. 1 as a day of remembrance in the 730s. From its earliest days, the night of Oct. 31 was marked as the beginning of the observance.

All Saints' Day was considered to be a day to remember the deceased, particularly the saints and martyrs of the church. The English began referring to All Saints' Day as Allhallowtide or Hallowmas by 1471.

The word came from older, more archaic words "hallow," which meant "holy" while "tide" meant "time." On the night before, All Hallow's Eve, many Roman Catholics at the time would visit cemeteries and pray for the dead. Over time, "All Hallow's Eve" or "All Hallow's Evening" was whittled down to "Halloween."

Elements of trick-or-treating began in the Middle Ages as the poor would go to the wealthy and ask for special treats for the day, soul cakes, in exchange for praying for their deceased loved ones. By the 1800s in Scotland and Ireland, trick-or-treating had evolved into dressing into costumes and going door-to-door for treats and moved away from the religious observance.

In Poland, the tradition for Halloween night has long been that people would pray out loud as they walked through forests in order to comfort the souls of the deceased. In Spain, church bells ring through the night to remind the faithful to pray for the dead.

In Eastern Orthodox countries of East Europe, however, prayer vigils are still sometimes held on the night of Oct. 31. As more Scottish and Irish immigrants moved to the United States, the trick-or-treating tradition came with them. Many American children began making their own costumes for Halloween by the late 1800s. The term "trick-or-treating" began to appear in the early twentieth century, and the famed Halloween tradition had fully established itself across the nation by the 1920s. Today, various estimates have stated that as many as 40 million American children participate in trick-or-treating each year.

Many other features of Halloween are centuries old. In Ireland, the jack-o-lantern was carved from turnips and carried on All Hallow's Eve to scare off evil spirits, a tradition dating back centuries. By the time this tradition arrived in the United States by the nineteenth century, the native pumpkin began to be used instead. Bobbing for apples, a popular Halloween game, dates to the 1700s.

Unlike Christmas, Halloween, particularly as it is practiced in the United States, is not as widely celebrated around the world. Many of the traditions observed in America are practiced in Canada, Scotland, and Ireland. Halloween is slowly catching on in Japan and in areas of Germany and India, mostly in the forms of costumes and Halloween parties.

Across Mexico and Latin America, All Saint's Day and Day of the Dead are celebrated back-to-back on successive days. Observances for the Day of the Dead are preferred, taking place each year on Nov. 2 as many will dress up as the dead on a day to remember friends and family who have passed on. A popular legend on the Day of the Dead in Latin America is that the spirits of the deceased will walk the Earth once more on that night. Schools in Ireland will often close on Halloween while in Mexico, schools will often close on the Day of the Dead.

In modern times, Americans buy upwards of 90 million pounds of candy each year. This amounts to about $3.6 billion. The most popular candy in 2023 was chocolate, according to the National Confectioners Association.

The most popular children's costume was Spiderman, with an estimated 2.6 million children dressing up as Spiderman in some form. Americans spend more than $8 billion each year on costumes and decorations for the evening's festivities, according to the National Retail Federation. Schools and churches regularly sponsor trunk-or-treat events and Halloween parties. Halloween has been a special part of childhood for generations. With its continued popularity and mountains of candy, it will continue to be a part of American culture for years to come.
