WSISD Seeking Parents and Community Members to Serve on School Health Advisory Council

White Settlement ISD is seeking parents and community members who would like to serve on the district's School Health Advisory Council (SHAC).

The SHAC works to ensure that students have the knowledge and skills to develop healthy behaviors. It serves as an advisory council, providing recommendations for health education curriculum and instruction and ensuring that local community values are reflected.

This advisory group also addresses issues regarding health services, physical education, counseling and wellness, nutrition, drug and alcohol awareness, and more.

The SHAC will meet twice this year: Thursday, Oct. 17 and Thursday, May 1 at 9 a.m.

Interested individuals should complete the School Health Advisory Council Interest form by Friday, Sept. 27.

The Brewer football team came up short against Saginaw in their season opener last Friday and will try to get back on track against Lake Dallas tomorrow night on the road.

The Bears lost by a score of 26-13 last week, and coach Jason Wheeler said the loss can be attributed almost entirely to a single factor.

NSDAR Members Celebrate 1900 Paris World Exposition

Mary Isham Keith Chapter, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution members and prospective members had a fabulous time commemorating the 1900 Paris World Exposition.

Food, fun and fellowship was in no short supply. Just ask Flat George Washington, who made it his second stop on his Celebrate America 250! Tour and got in on the fun.

Commemorative Event Chair Laura Tauzel planned the event and provided decorations, and Daughters on the Go Chair Debbie Murray created a photo booth that everyone enjoyed.

Many hands helped prepare and provide delicious food. Daughters brought or sent donations for their ongoing Community Service Project - Backpacks for the Epilepsy Program at Cook Children's Hospital.

A little about the 1900 Paris Exposition which ran from April 14 to Nov. 12, 1900: Fifty-six countries were invited and 40 participated, including colonies and protectorates. Twenty-one of the 33 pavilions were devoted to technology and science.

One of the most popular attractions was the giant kaleidoscope with over 3 million visitors. Another attraction was the 360-foot-high Ferris Wheel that carried 1600 passengers in its 40 cars. Riders were charged one franc for a second-class car and two francs for a more spacious first-class car, and passengers often waited an hour for a ride. There was also a moving sidewalk, electric train and electrobus.

More than one million women have found purpose and passion in DAR membership. If you are interested in learning more about DAR membership, especially as we reach our nation's 250th birthday, email mikregent2023@gmail.com.

The Nineteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution

The women's rights movement spread across the West in the late 1800s. The right for women to vote was the top issue, but there was much opposition to it. The debate in Texas was no exception. Women winning the right to vote in Texas was the result of many years of hard work by individuals as well as such organizations as the Texas Equal Suffrage Association.

For many years, there had been quiet calls for women to gain the vote and have rights guaranteed. Abigail Adams wrote a famous letter to her husband John Adams at the Continental Congress in 1776, imploring him to "remember the ladies" as Congress considered independence from Great Britain and weighed the defense of the liberties of men. Women actually received the right to vote first in New Jersey in 1776, but it was an oversight. The state's new constitution gave the right to vote to any resident who owned property and did not specify men only. Some women met the property-owning requirement but saw their right to vote stripped away in 1806.

The Seneca Falls Convention, held in Seneca Falls, New York, in 1848, called for all women to be given equal rights with men, but it took decades to overcome political obstacles and social conventions that kept women out of the election process. Women would not be able to vote anywhere in the nation until the Wyoming Territory gave women the vote in

The Texas Equal Rights Association, formed in 1893, was among the first organizations to push for the vote, inspiring a failed bill in the legislature in 1895. Many early Texas suffragists were leaders in the Prohibition movement and saw the vote as the key to ending the scourge of alcoholism.

African-American temperance activist Eliza Peterson of Texarkana openly campaigned for the vote, and Hispanic newspaper editor Jovita Idar rallied support in the state's Spanish-language newspapers. Support built slowly. Minnie Cunningham of Galveston came to lead the new Texas Equal Suffrage Association in 1916 and tirelessly lobbied legislators.

The state House of Representatives approved suffrage in 1917, but the Senate, backed by Gov. Jim Ferguson, rejected it. When the move to impeach Ferguson arose over corruption charges, suffragists organized support for his removal.

Once Gov. William P. Hobby ascended to the governorship, he recognized through Cunningham's advocacy how powerful the movement had become and became a great supporter of the cause. Hobby called a special session of the state legislature into session in March 1918, and both houses overwhelmingly approved a law giving women the right to vote but only in primary elections. Women also had to pass literacy tests to be able to vote as well. But Texas was still a one-party state in 1918, which meant that the winner of the Democratic Primary almost automatically won the general election.

This law made Texas and Arkansas the only two states to grant women the vote in this way. However, most states did not give women the right to vote yet. The effort now turned to Congress and a constitutional amendment to give the vote to women.

In the House of Representatives in May 1919, and with the urging of President Woodrow Wilson, congressmen voted 304-89 in favor of the constitutional amendment to give women the right to vote. The Texas delegation split, with 10 in favor and 7 against.

Supporters included Rep. Fritz Lanham of Weatherford, former editor and son of a former governor, Rep. Hatton Sumners of Dallas, a former prosecutor, Rep. Lucian Parrish, a Van Alstyne native and Henrietta attorney, Rep. Claude Hudspeth, an El Paso rancher, and Rep. John Jones, an Amarillo lawyer and future federal judge.

Opponents included such figures as Rep. Sam Rayburn of Bonham, a future Speaker of the House who, ironically, would later push through civil rights laws that would protect the right of women to vote, and the cantankerous Rep. John Nance Garner, a future vice-president.

On June 1, the Senate approved by 56-25. The two Texas Senators, Charles Culberson and Morris Sheppard, both voted in favor. Sheppard would co-sponsor the Sheppard-Towner Act in 1921, the first federal legislation to aid women's childbirth and prenatal health needs.

Now passing Congress, states quickly took up the issue amid a storm of protest from anti-suffragists. Thirty-six out of 48 states were required for ratification. The Texas legislature ratified the amendment on June 28, less than a month after it was sent to the states. Texas was the first southern state and the first western state to ratify the amendment.

Tennessee became the last state needed for ratification on Aug. 18, 1920, approved by a margin of one vote. Of the old Confederate states, only Arkansas, Texas, and Tennessee approved the amendment.

The Nineteenth Amendment was ratified just in time for women to vote in the 1920 presidential election.

NCTCOG to Host Transportation Public Meeting Sept. 9

The North Central Texas Council of Governments (NCTCOG) is seeking input on transportation planning initiatives during an upcoming public meeting at noon on Monday, Sept. 9. The session will be held at NCTCOG's Arlington offices, located at 616 Six Flags Drive. For those unable to attend in person, the meeting will be streamed live at publicinput.com/nctcogSept24. Participants can also join the discussion by calling 855-925-2801 and entering code 10502. Public comments will be accepted until Tuesday, Oct. 8.

An update on the Dallas-Fort Worth High-Speed Transportation Connections Study will be presented, highlighting recent project developments.

In response to concerns from the City of Dallas about the proposed downtown alignment, the RTC held a workshop on July 11 to address these issues. On Aug. 8, the RTC decided to proceed with the federal environmental review process, incorporating flexibility to explore alternative routes for downtown Dallas that address stakeholder concerns. NCTCOG staff will provide an overview of the project's planning, engineering and stakeholder engagement efforts to date, along with next steps for this transformative initiative.

The Miles Matter Program, a collaborative project with the Texas A&M Transportation Institute, Carma Technologies and the Texas Department of Transportation, aims to utilize smartphone technology to analyze travel patterns on Dallas-Fort Worth roadways.

Set to launch this month, the initiative will involve approximately 500 participants along the Interstate Highway 35W corridor, who will be incentivized to shift their commute times outside of peak travel periods. The project is designed to gather insights and will include additional phases based on initial feedback and engagement.

Information related to interactive public input, air quality funding and initiatives, Try Parking It and Access North Texas will also be available online for review and comment.

Residents planning to use transit to attend the meeting can take advantage of $6 roundtrip rides from the CentrePort/DFW Airport Station to NCTCOG via the Arlington Transportation app. To download the app, go to arlingtontx.gov/ondemand.

For special accommodations related to disabilities or language interpretation, please contact 817-695-9255 or email jcastillo@nctcog.org.

Survey: Help Shape Access North Texas 2026 Update

Public involvement efforts for the next update of Access North Texas are underway, and two separate surveys will help shape the public transportation plan for 16 counties in North Central Texas. The first is available for the public and can be completed by visiting the program's website.

A separate survey is open to agencies and organizations that provide public transportation services or serve transit-dependent populations; it can be accessed here. Staff will utilize survey results in the plan's 2026 update.

The plan documents available transportation options and identifies gaps in service as well as the needs of older adults, individuals with disabilities and individuals with lower incomes. It is required to be updated every four years. Upon completion, local governments, transit agencies, regional partners and stakeholders may use Access North Texas as part of their transportation planning efforts.

Meals On Wheels of Tarrant County In Urgent Need of Volunteers

Meals On Wheels of Tarrant County has an urgent need for meal-delivery volunteers. With the increase in the number of clients along several routes, many could be left without a volunteer to deliver their noon-time meals. We currently have several open routes desperately in need of volunteers to deliver meals.

"Volunteers are the backbone of what we do," said Carla Jutson, President & CEO. "Not only do they deliver nutritious meals and friendly smiles, but they also provide daily safety checks."

Volunteering takes about one hour, one day a week, Monday through Friday, between 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m.

For more information or to sign up to volunteer in Tarrant County, please visit mealsonwheels.org/volunteer or call 817-258-6428.

“When you turn the ball over five times, it's hard to win football games,” Wheeler said.

Besides the turnovers, Wheeler said he did see some good signs from his team.

“I thought the kids played hard,” Wheeler said. “There is not doubt about that. Defensively, we were in a bind early, and got a turnover to get the ball back to the offense, but we turned it back over to them and they were able to score. We blocked the extra point, so it was 6-6 at half time, and we had the opportunity to get back out, but we gave up a big play and they were able to get momentum. We turned the ball over a couple of more times and that's all she wrote.”

Wheeler said he did have one player have an especially good night against the Rough Riders.

“Damyrian Wash is a sophomore line-backer,” Wheeler said. “The guy is like a heat-seeking missile. He finds the football and he's violent when he gets there.”

Brewer plays at 7 p.m. on Sept. 6 at Lake Dallas and Wheeler said his guys need to step up.

“We aren't going to be able to turn the ball over at all against those guys. They are a very solid and disciplined football team. So we are going to have to take care of the ball and make big plays on defense,” Wheeler said.
