Western Hills HS to Take on Polytechnic; Benbrook MHS to Host Mineral Wells

The Western Hills Cougars came up short against Mineral Wells last week, and coach Blake Moilan said his team got into a hole too early.

“Mineral Wells jumped up on us pretty quickly,” Moilan said. “Again we started slow. Once we calmed down, we played pretty good football. We have to trust ourselves and abilities and we will be fine.”

In spite of starting the season 0-2, Moilan said his team has gained valuable experience early on and continues to show rapid improvement.

“We had two very physical games so far this season with two good teams,” Moilan said. “We hope that these games will help make us more physical and better. We have seen growth in each game. We knew we had our hands full with both teams and believe that this is what non-district games are for.”

Moilan said he did have a couple of standout efforts in the game.

“Kaream Williams had a big game at running back,” Moilan said. “He rushed for over 100 yards with minimum touches. We are excited about him moving forward and getting him some more looks. Our two safeties, Michael Williams and Javoris Hamilton, both played well on defense and came up with some big tackles. They led the defense in tackles.”

Western Hills will play Polytechnic this evening at 7 p.m. and Moilan said he expects another tough contest.

“Poly got a big win this week and will be going into the our game with some confidence,” Moilan said. “They have some talented skill position guys that we will need to try to slow down. We need to go into the game and be physical. We have played physical games and need to carry that physicality into the game.”

Over at Benbrook, the Bobcat football team improved to 2-0 on Friday night with a 34-28 victory over Iowa Park.

Collin Thompson led the way offensively for the Bobcats, throwing three touchdown passes and rushing for 109 yards in the game.

Chris Harris rushed for 102 yards and a touchdown against the Hawks and Brady Gordon rushed for 61 yards and a touchdown.

Receiver Lucas Jackson had four receptions for 53 yards and two touchdown catches.

Benbrook will host Mineral Wells tomorrow night at 7 p.m.

Public Hearing Tonight

The City Council of the City of Benbrook will hold a public hearing on Thursday, Sept. 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers, located at 911 Winscott Road to consider the Proposed Budget for Fiscal Year 2023-24.

The Council will also hold a separate public hearing on this date and time to consider the 2023 property tax rate.

Copies of the Fiscal Year 2023-24 Proposed Budget and the 2023 Property Tax Rates in Benbrook are available at Benbrook City Hall and on the City’s website www.benbrook-tx.gov.

This budget will raise more total property taxes than last year’s budget by $1,406,698 and 8.16 percent, and of that amount $164,073 is tax revenue to be raised from new property added to the roll this year.

TAFB Returns to Herman Clark Memorial Stadium With a Mega Mobile Event Sept. 8

Tarrant Area Food Bank (TAFB), the primary distribution source of donated food for hunger-relief partner agencies and feeding programs in 13 counties, including Tarrant County, teamed up with Hello Fresh just two years ago to begin handing out their Meals With Meaning kits to those in need at the mega mobile events.

This meal kit company will celebrate a milestone when they hand out their One-Millionth Meals With Meaning meal kit on Friday, Sept. 8 at Herman Clark Memorial Stadium, located at 5201 Ca Roberson Blvd., Fort Worth, TX, 76119, from 8 to 10 a.m.

The site is home of TAFB's first mega mobile event during the pandemic and where the first Hello Fresh meal kit was handed out to those facing food insecurity in Tarrant County. The Hello Fresh employees from their local DFW distribution center will also volunteer their time to load meal kits into cars, along with Standard Meat Company employees of the locally owned organization who are providing the protein for the meal kits.

On the court, the Benbrook volleyball team lost in a tough, five-game match against Lake Worth last week, and coach Frances Davies said on Saturday that she was pleased with the way her players fought in the face of adversity.

"My overall thoughts on last night are that even in chaos, these girls never stop fighting," Davies said. "We unfortunately started out down a starting outside, then lost our second setter to an ankle injury during the third set and had to Tetris the rotations. After five long, close games, we did fall to Lake Worth, but we did see a lot of the younger, new girls step up into leader roles So definitely some gains there."

Davies said she had several players step up in the match.

"I think as a whole, the group stood out only because they really had to learn on the go and figure it out quick," Davies said. "Captains Luci Rotman and Breezy Butler stepped up to help be the calming presence on court and took the lead in creating scoring situations."

Benbrook will play at 5:45 tomorrow afternoon at Kennedale and Davies said there are still some question marks for her team.

"I'd love to say I know what to expect seeing as how we've already played and beat them," Davies said. "However, during our first match up, both teams played with injuries and missing athletes. While not in our district, there's always been a decent rivalry between us, so I'm expecting Kennedale to come out swinging. We're going to have to force ourselves to be perfect in the basics—smart but aggressive with our attacks, and play strict defense."

Three Ways to Use TikTok for After-School Learning

While TikTok often gets a bad rap as a time-waster, in reality, there are thousands of influencers on the app sharing content designed to inspire, educate and encourage creativity.

It’s no wonder then that a recent survey by Study.com found that one in four Americans use TikTok to enrich their education, with over half doing so because it’s easier to understand.

So, rather than tell your kids to stop scrolling, here are three ways to leverage TikTok to enhance your children’s learning outside the classroom:

1. Music-making: Did you know that short, digestible TikToks are making it easier than ever to learn to play the piano online?

From @gray_toven, who offers quick tutorials of trending music to @thepianopath, who provides time-strapped prospective piano players tips for getting started, there is an array of content to suit the needs of students looking for instruction and motivation.

2. Language learning: The best way to get fluent in a new language is to hear it spoken aloud and to have actual conversations. Fortunately, there are plenty of TikTok accounts making it easy to pick up new vocabulary, absorb grammar, learn common phrases and even connect with a community of students.

Check out @yospanishofficial, which in addition to quick Tik-

Toks packed with tips and short lessons, also offers a weekly role play on Zoom so that students can practice conversational Spanish with others on the same mission.

Or, to get familiar with Chinese words and phrases you’ll need in common scenarios, such as ordering food in a restaurant or asking for a Wi-Fi password, @chinesewithyan is a great place to start.

3. Homework help: Students no longer need to do their math homework alone. TikTok “tutors” abound that help guide students through their lessons, often in unique and creative ways.

For example, @melodiesformath explains important math concepts through songs, whereas @your.bummy.math.tutor dishes tips for saving critical time on tests and acing important exams, like the SAT.

TikTok tutors are also familiarizing students with their scientific or graphing calculator, so they can arrive at the answer quickly and easily with their device. Pair these virtual lessons with the latest in calculator technology.

While TikTok may not seem like a learning tool, by digging a little deeper, you’ll find complicated concepts and information explained in bite-sized chunks on a familiar and fun interface.

21st Governor of Texas - Charles A. Culberson by Dr. Ken Bridges

Charles Culberson was part of an influential Texas political family. He would lead a notable career in his own right, serving two terms as governor and three terms in the U. S. Senate.

Culberson was born in June 1855 in eastern Alabama. Shortly after he was born, his ambitious father, David B. Culberson, moved the family to Texas and set up a law firm in Upshur County and was a state legislator by 1858 and later a United States Congressman from 1875 to 1897.

Culberson graduated from the prestigious Virginia Military Institute in 1874 and earned a law degree from the University of Virginia in 1877. He served as an attorney in Jefferson in East Texas for several years before moving to Dallas in 1887.

In 1890, Culberson made his first run for political office, announcing his candidacy for attorney general. His father's influence as a congressman helped Culberson gain the political traction he needed. As a result, Culberson won the election handily.

Like his predecessor, Jim Hogg, who had since risen to become governor, Culberson attacked the corruption in the railroad industry and the price-fixing practices many railroads used to hurt farmers shipping their crops to market. His popularity by 1894 propelled him to the governorship as well.

As governor, Culberson enacted a number of reforms, just as Hogg had done in the previous four years. He signed laws aimed at combatting monopolies in the state, made modest changes in the judicial system, and gave new powers to the recently formed Railroad Commission in their efforts to regulate railroad practices.

Just as Culberson's second term as governor was ending in 1899, the new state legislature voted to make him the new U.S. Senator from Texas.

He became an influential member of the Senate. He ultimately served as chairman of four different committees in his twenty-four year Senate career. Additionally, for two years starting in 1907, he headed the Senate Democratic caucus.

For six years, Culberson served as chairman of the powerful Senate Judiciary Committee, which oversaw the Senate's considerations of presidential nominations for federal judges. His committee approved four nominees to the Supreme Court for consideration by the full Senate, including Attorney General James McReynolds in 1914 and Louis Brandeis, the first Jew to serve on the Supreme Court.

That year, Culberson himself faced re-election to the Senate and had to face the voters directly instead of the election held in the state legislature, thanks to 1913 ratification of the Seventeenth Amendment he had supported. Culberson won easily, as he had in most elections so far.

Although Democrats were unable to regain control of the Senate in the 1920 election, Culberson still was able to chair a committee, given his seniority and respect among his fellow Senators. He chaired the Committee on Private Land Claims, a small committee devoted to settling land disputes on property bought from the federal government.

At the same, he was facing another issue. Culberson was disgusted by the tactics, corruption, and violence of the Ku Klux Klan, which was rising quickly throughout the nation in the years following World War I. He spoke out against the KKK on several occasions, but Culberson's political influence was gradually receding.

Culberson's alcoholism continued to take its toll on him. He grew ill, unable to concentrate on many issues, and he neglected many duties to his constituents in Texas. Constituent service became even more important as the Senate was now elected by the general public rather than state legislators.

In 1922, he faced re-election but was unable to campaign. The KKK threw everything it had into Railroad Commissioner

Earle B. Mayfield, who managed to oust the four-term Senator.

After Culberson's term ended in January 1923, he stayed in Washington, DC, in general seclusion during his retirement, his health steadily declining. He died in 1925.
