White Settlement Fire Department Celebrates 75th Anniversary

The White Settlement Fire Department (WSFD) celebrated their 75th Anniversary Saturday, May 4 at the facility.

White Settlement Mayor Curby Mirike called a meeting to organize a Volunteer Fire Department with assistance from Grand Prairie Fire Chief J.C. Swadley, Jr. on May 5, 1949.

In 2016, the WSFD transitioned from volunteer to part-time personnel. The following year, two full-time Captains and a part-time Fire Chief were hired.

Brewer Athletes Medal at State Track and Field Meet

Brewer brought home some hardware from the state track and field meet this past weekend, as distance runner Ki Rendon (above) took the bronze medal in the 1,600-meter race.

Rendon finished with a time of 4:53.47 in the half-mile run and coach Kathi Olson said she was proud of her senior's effort.

"She did exactly what we talked about and executed to perfection," Olson said. "Those two girls (Leachman and Frankenburg, the first and second place runners) are two of the top distance runners in the United States, and Ki did such an amazing job running with them. We thought Leachman would go out and set a fast pace from the start. We also thought Frankenburg would react to the pace by running fast splits behind her. Ki and I talked about staying with them and focusing on the third lap to keep herself in medal contention."

Rendon ran a new PR by three seconds from her previous best at the Texas Relays where she ran a 4:56.84.

Olson said that Rendon has meant a lot to the Brewer cross-country and track and field programs and will leave some big shoes to fill when she graduates.

"Ki is the fastest and highest-placing runner in school history in two sports, cross-country and track and field," Olson said. "She has not only set the standard on the course and track, but she has also been doing the same thing in every practice; she works hard every practice, every day to be a better runner. She leads the team, by example, in athletics and academics."

Rendon is still deciding where to run in college and wants to visit the schools interested in her.

"And after running a 4:53, she will hopefully get some more schools interested in her joining their programs next year," Olson said.

Reflecting on the season as a whole, Olson said she is pleased with how things unfolded for Brewer.

"I'm extremely satisfied," Olson said. "Ki's senior season has been nothing but amazing. Every week she is learning more and more about herself, training, and how to execute races. It has been an honor to get to be a part of her journey. And we aren't done yet, she will compete in the Meet of Champions in San Marcos in two weeks. Then she qualified for the Nike Outdoor National Championships in Oregon in June."

On the boys' side, Brandon Clark, Jr. (pictured left) brought home a bronze medal as well in the triple jump event with a mark of 46-2.75, while teammate Desmond Watkins finished fifth with a mark of 45-6.50

On the diamond, the season came to an end for the Brewer softball team who lost in a hard-fought series against Colleyville Heritage in the area round over the weekend.

Coach Joshua Richards said it was a tough couple of games for his players, but added that they never backed down.

"Overall, we knew it was going to be a very tough series," Richards said. "That's a great team. We faced them last year, and we knew how much talent they were bringing back. We were so impressed with our girls for fighting through a tough game one, and then coming right back and going to extra innings and going toe-to-toe and just pushing them to the limit. We took a lead in the late innings to potentially win it. It was just huge for our kids and it shows how much heart and fight my group has."

Richards said he is extremely grateful to his assistant coaches Calie Burres and Tanya Johnson for the amount of time and commitment they "poured into the players," and said earning a playoff spot and winning a post-season series were great accomplishments for his team this season.

"You're just proud of your kids," Richards said. "We started the year battling injuries. Blair Shipman was out the majority of our season, and she's an anchor for us in the circle. One of our freshmen, Khloe Winn stepped in and had some ups and downs, but ultimately succeeded and did well. It was the same thing with Karlie Landrum being leaned upon to throw more innings. It's just a big deal for the kids to grow during the season versus taking steps backward...every time we took a step back, we'd take three or four steps forward."

Texas History Minute by Dr. Ken Bridges

Folklorist, Writer and Newspaper Columnist, J. Frank Dobie

Great storytelling is an honored tradition across the South and the Southwest. Texas, with its long history of engaging characters and adventures, has produced many tales to tell. Perhaps one of the most respected storytellers was writer and professor J. Frank Dobie.

Born James Frank Dobie on Sept. 26, 1888, a love of literature and the open prairie was instilled in him from birth. The family lived on a modest ranch in Live Oak County in South Texas. Dobie was the oldest of six children, and he worked the ranch with his family from a young age. In the evenings, after the day's chores had been completed, his father read to him and the other children from the family Bible while his mother read classic works of literature to them.

In order to finish high school, Dobie moved in with his grandparents in nearby Alice in 1904. After his 1906 graduation, he enrolled at Southwestern University in Georgetown. Armed with an education, life moved quickly for Dobie. After earning his bachelors degree, he began writing for a number of newspapers for a year before accepting a teaching position in 1911. Two years later, he left for Columbia University in New York City to pursue a masters degree in English. He returned to Texas in 1914 and began teaching at the University of Texas.

Dobie enlisted in the army as the United States entered World War I in 1917. After serving in the artillery for two years, he returned to the university in 1919. After his military experiences, he began expressing himself more with the written word and began publishing stories and studies of aspects of folklore in 1919. He joined the Texas

Folklore Society to preserve folk tales and stories of the unique culture of the Southwest, rising to secretary of the organization by 1922.

His first major work was a short, clever booklet titled Weather Wisdom of the Texas-Mexican Border in 1923, noting how rain is never a subject far from the thoughts of Texas ranchers and farmers.

Dobie wrote, "Everyone knows and quotes the saying, 'Nobody but a fool or a newcomer will prophesy the weather in Texas' – a saying vaunted before strangers but never remembered in their absence." The tome was filled with stories of how watching different animals can foretell the weather as well as his own stories of growing up in South Texas before closing with the warning, "Be it remembered, all Texans have a saying, 'In dry weather all signs fail.'"

Dobie also played a role in preventing longhorn cattle from disappearing. He had been part of the university for several years when students chose the longhorn as the mascot in 1917. However, longhorns had fallen out of favor with ranchers and steadily fewer were being bred. Dobie grew concerned about the deteriorating numbers of the longhorn, and he started writing about them in 1920. He persuaded several ranchers and benefactors to buy a number of longhorns to stock at state parks starting in the 1920s and 1930s. As a result, more attention began to be brought to the iconic creatures, and their reputation as a symbol of Texas and reputation as livestock steadily increased. He completed a book on the life and legends of the breed in "The Longhorns" in 1941.

He wrote on his most famous works, the award-winning "Coronado's Children" in 1930. The book amassed tales of treasure-hunters and lost treasures. Ultimately, Dobie would publish more than 20 books in his lifetime, including "Tales of the Mustang" in 1936 and "The Roadrunner" in Fact and Folk-lore in 1939.

By 1939, he had a weekly newspaper column in which he not only discussed Texas culture but railed against the political injustices of the day. The state legislature became a frequent target of his barbs. He openly called for integrating the University of Texas in the early 1940s, leading him to clash with numerous state leaders. His fame grew to where he was invited to teach American History at Cambridge University during World War II.

In 1944, while still overseas, he angrily protested the firing of a fellow UT professor for his liberal views, leading to his own dismissal by 1947.

Later in his life, a new generation of Texas leaders came to appreciate Dobie's work and influence. On Sept. 14, 1964, President Lyndon B. Johnson awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom to Dobie in honor of his long career. The award from a fellow Texan was a great affirmation of his writing and the controversial stands he had taken throughout his life. The ailing Dobie died four days later. A large crowd gathered for his funeral, which was held on the University of Texas campus.

Dobie was honored after his death. A number of books have been written about him. A post office in San Antonio was named for him as well as the Dobie Center at the University of Texas. DobieHigh School opened in Houston in 1968. Middle schools in Cibolo and Austin as well as an elementary school in Dallas now honor the famed writer.
